Reuters World News Express

WELCOME TO ACCELERATED NEWS DELIVERY.

A news story is most valuable the moment it happens. As audiences become increasingly demanding, access to high-quality video, in the most efficient and timely manner, is vital.

Reuters World News Express (WNE) provides efficiency

Reuters WNE delivers edited video news stories in integrated digital files via satellite. Digital file technology eliminates the need for fixed transmission times and a more efficient way to move, exchange and store content in file format within your own production facilities. Our highly-functional and robust delivery processes are designed for closer integration and to help streamline your daily production workflow.

Reuters WNE features

1. Satellite delivery with internet backup, ensuring you never miss a story, regardless of weather or outages.
2. WNE PC or Server with an improved search, saved playlist and user interface.
3. Linear layout for manual use and newsroom awareness.
4. Video scripts and advisories delivered via satellite and published to a website or saved directly to your systems.
5. 24-hour editorial and technical support.

Reuters WNE means:

Immediacy.

- Live content – no delays. The moment video news files are edited they're instantly delivered and ready for broadcast.
- Ability to access scripts even before the video arrives.

Working together.

- Multiple user access to each story file allows several editors to work on a single story simultaneously.
- Choose from Reuters and specialist third-party partner content, all delivered via a single website.
- Accessible 'Ask a Question' link on every story preview connects you directly to our editorial staff.

Reliability.

- Eliminate the risk of image degradation by removing the need to record video feeds onto tapes. Reduce errors and minimize storage and manual handling requirements.
- Access material quickly and easily with files automatically stored locally on your network or editorial system.

Ease and simplicity.

- Find what you need quickly, with access rights, shot-lists and script information linked to each video file.
- Better search with unified metadata across all content.
- Streamlined file distribution allows for more efficient storage of video and script files.
